Marion's Drive to Win State Loop Ticket Contest Enters Home Stretch

8,322 Ducats Distributed with Deadline Due Monday

Judge Hazen Issues Appeal for Support of Final Drive To "Win" Chandler and Lausche.

By JIM DARBY

With two days remaining in the Ohio State league baseball opening day advance ticket sale Judge W. Lester Hazen reports that 8,322 tickets are in the hands of more than 125 solicitor salesmen.

The Cardinal president points out, however, that the club had 10,000 printed and can quite easily put in a rush order for more tickets from the printers. Judge Hazen said such a rush order wouldn't inconvenience him in the least and renewed the Cardinal organization's plea for wide public support of a home stretch campaign to win the contest.

One of the best ways to help the city, he reminds Marion boosters, is to get behind the ticket contest and bring "Happy" Chandler and Gov. Lausche here.

The baseball commissioner makes a big splash on the sports pages at least everytime he appears in Judge Hazen feels that if Marion wins the contest and gets the two dignitaries here for the season opener April 26, the city's name will appear in newspapers throughout the country.

Reports on number of tickets lag behind actual sales, Judge Hazen said, so that a spot check of the current total is nearly impossible. Only the serial numbers of the tickets in the hands of the various agents are known. All salesmen are to have their report into Judge Hazen's office in time for him to compile the total before the noon deadline Monday.

While he feels confident Marion will win, now is not the time to let down and coast. All totals must be wired into the league office at noon Monday and the contest has been narrowed down to Marion and Dayton. The latter city has a ten-to-one jump on Marion in population.

Tickets purchased now do not have to be used opening day although all bought before April 1 will count in the race. They can be used, however, at any time during the season.

Only Three in Camps

Only three of the eight ball clubs in the league are sending their teams to southern training camps. The Marion Cardinals are training at Albany, Ga., the Zanesville Dodgers at Thomasville, Ga. and the Middletown Reds at Columbia, S. C. The other five teams will train in their own back yards.

Dayton Indians will be the first of the play-at-home clubs to open training. Manager Frank Parenti ordered his ropefuls to report April 1. Dayton has a tie-up with Cleveland this season.

The Springfield Giants will open April 8 with the newly named independent Lima Terriers and Newark Moundsmen opening April 8. The Portsmouth Braves won't open until April 15, on which date they're scheduled an exhibition game between the Cincinnati Reds and the Detroit Tigers for April 11 at Municipal stadium, but many of their players will have had some workout with other Boston Braves outfits.

Managers signed thus far are Wally Shang of Marion, Mace Blazo of Middletown, Don Ramsey of Springfield, Charlie Moore of Lima, Lefty Settimore of Richmond, Clay Bryant of Zanesville and Bob Boken of Newark. They will act as playing managers while Parents will run Dayton from the bench.

Dayton Has Troubles

Economic uncertainties and absenteeism are besetting the Dayton club. Eddie Kautz asked for and got his unconditional release because he did not want to take the financial risk of quitting his job to make the team. Robert Horner, a catcher, optioned to the Dayton team from Batavia, N. Y., has remained a deep silence. He has not returned his contract nor answered any communications addressed to him.

Zanesville Woos Star

Zanesville has a promising outfielder returning named Maynard DeWitt. Although he has not yet reported at the Dodgers' High Point, N. C. training camp, according to the Zanesville Signal, he is the most talked of player signed. He did some sensational fielding last year and is very fast. However he is still learning to hit and another year in class D Siberia is predicted for him.

WEST COAST LEAGUE SET FOR BIG YEAR

Hopes This Year Will Clinch Major League Ambitions.

By The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES, March 29 — Baseball's most ambitious league—the Pacific Coast—gets off today on its 44th and perhaps most important season.

The league-state-would-be-major views 1946 as the acid test of its aspirations, but confidence abounds.

With first-caliber playing talent returned from service and drawn from the majors, all eight clubs are improving greatly and owners are quite attendance greater than last year's near four million.

"We're in for a wide-open race," predicted League President Clarence Rowland. "Last year we outdrew the American Association and International — two leagues with our AAA classification — combined. I think we'll do it again."

The PCL already has the unanimous backing of the other majors, but a major league committee is eyeing the bid warily. In major circles, there's doubt about the ability of Sacramento, San Diego and possibly one or two other cities to support big league ball.

But Rowland insists the entire league—not just one or two teams—rates major standing. He points to growing population and claims the financial situation of each club is satisfactory.

Cincy Ready To Start Long Exhibition Tour to North

By The Associated Press

TAMPA, Fla., March 29—The Cincinnati Reds, victor in six of their last eight exhibition games, prepared to break up their training camp here today as they met Billy Southworth's Boston Braves in a Grapefruit league tilt.

It will be the next-to-last appearance here for Bill McKechnie's team. They go to Plant City tomorrow for a single game with their farm hands, the Syracuse Chiefs of the International league, and return here Sunday for a single engagement with the Boston Red Sox—the first contest in a northbound series of 16 games to be concluded April 9 at Lexington, Ky.

Parting company with Boston, the Reds join up with the Detroit Tigers for four games at Terre Haute and Richmond, Ind., Dayton and Columbus, O. April 4 they take on the Indianapolis Indians in the Hoosier capital, rest the next day and Tuesday, April 16, open the National league season at Crosley Field, back home in Cincinnati against the Pittsburgh Pirates.

To date, the Reds' grapefruit record reads 10 wins and eight losses.

Yesterday's game with the Detroit Tigers was washed out in the first inning.

Warren Giles, Cincinnati general manager, heard from the club's lone holdout yesterday. Pitcher Elmer Riddle telephoned from his Columbus, Ga. home to request that he be placed on the voluntary retired list.

The righthander, troubled with a sore arm the last two seasons, said he didn't feel up to a tryout this spring but that if his arm showed an improvement, he would be around next year. Riddle won 19 and lost four for the Reds in 1943, his best season.

Hot Welter Scrap on WMRN Tonight

Rocky Graziano tests his "bear-the-birdies sing" right hand against the new welterweight champ, Marty Servo (above), in the main ten at Madison Square Garden tonight.

Rocky has knocked out six of his last seven opponents. Only middleweight Sonny Horne managed to last the distance with him. In two fights with Cochrane, however, Graziano required ten rounds on each occasion to dispose of the New Jersey Redhead—while Servo, in a title event, accomplished the same result in four rounds and won the crown.

Outside the heavy division, Rocky is considered the mightiest puncher in boxing today. But Servo has never been kayoed and claims never to have been knocked off his feet!

Yanks Look Like Runaway in Title Race

Scribe Picks Boston Second, Then Tigers, Senators, Indians as Camps Break.

By GAYLE TALBOT
Associated Press Sports Writer

TAMPA, Fla., March 29—If ever a ball club looked ready to run away with a pennant race it is the New York Yankees as they break camp at St. Petersburg today and stage out on a seven-state exhibition tour on their way north.

Once again Manager Joe McCarthy has a great club at his command, and the American league is apt to find the competition unbearable. The observer's best guess is that the Boston Red Sox will finish second, the Detroit Tigers third and Washington fourth, ahead of Cleveland.

It would be impossible not to give the Yanks with such hitters as Joe DiMaggio, Charley Keller, Tommy Henrich, Nick Etten, George Stirnweiss and Joe Gordon in the lineup.

In pitching the club does not appear to stack up with Boston, Detroit, Washington and Cleveland, yet with the kind of batting it is certain to get its pitching should prove adequate. At least McCarthy says it will be enough.

Boston Is "Natural"

Joe Cronin's Boston club is a natural choice to chase the Yankees to the wire again, as in '43 and '44 before their years of service. Conceivably the Sox might even finish in front if everything went exactly right, but the record simply is against them.

Detroit's case is similar—a team that was one year and relegated to second place before the next race opens. And the Tigers will be a vastly stronger outfit than that which beat the Cubs in the last World Series. The answer is, of course, the Yankees and Red Sox are to be even stronger.

The Tigers, for some reason, have not looked good in their exhibition games. Hank Greenberg, who has been hitting, and trying to get back into the outfield after a year in the service, has been bothered by a sore arm. Outfielder "Hoot" Evers has a sore ankle.

Connie Mack—at 83 the grand old man of baseball—is counting on Cleveland in the coming race to at least easily prove the worst of the disasters made in the forecasting remarks. The Indians, with a fine fourman pitching staff headed by Bobby Feller, could make a great deal of trouble if a couple of one or two of their rookies should prove capable of hitting around .300.

Have Good Form

The Senators, however, deserve the spot on form. They battled Detroit right down to closing day last year, and they are coming back with a lot of pitching and considerably more punch in the outfield. Rival managers do not take them lightly.

The St. Louis Browns, still afflicted with a serious holdout in shortstop Vern Stephens, do not look strong enough to break into the Yankees "big five" though it is only two years since they won the flag. Their crop could be compared to that of the Tigers. The Chicago White Sox should be able to beat the Philadelphia Athletics to the seventh spot.

LOVE'S FAIR HORIZON

By ADELE GARRISON

I DID not remind my husband that I had "checked out" with Katharine on his statement of conviction but a few minutes before. Long experience of his moods and tenses has taught me the futility of such reminders. I known which I fancy most wives know.

"I'll go over at once," I said, moving toward the door, "and bring you a report."

An Affectionate Kiss

"And I'll go with you, on my way home," Mary said, bending over her uncle in his wheel chair, and dropping an affectionate kiss on the top of his head.

"Make Aunt Madge tell you what she just advised me," she said. "You'll be surprised, but you needn't get out any rules. They won't be needed."

She closed the door on the admonition, and caught my arm.

"That was all right, wasn't it?" she asked. "I think he really ought to know Grant's little scheme, before the affair is over."

"Of course, darling," I told her. I already had planned to tell him all about it as soon as I get a chance."

"Poor Auntie Madge!" She gave a gaily sigh, and smiled impishly at me, but I knew that beneath the gibe lay sincere sympathy. "You have a hard time catching up with life, don't you?"

Feels Like a Squirrel

"Sometimes I feel as if I were a squirrel on a treadmill," I told her, then added honestly, "but not very often."

"You usually get to whatever place you're going," she said, and there was a nuance of heady admiration in her voice which angered me immeasurably.

Then we knocked softly upon my mother-in-law's door, and in another second Katharine had come out of the door and closed it after her.

"It's a shame to bother you," I said, "but Dicky asked me to come and ask you how his mother was."

"If you use the word 'bother' again," Katharine threatened, "I'll wash out your mouth with soap and water. He's worrying unduly, of course, but he certainly is entitled to be humored."

"I'd like to be humored, too," Mary said, smiling at Katharine.

The Same Report

"I'll give you both the same report," Katharine answered. "She's still sleeping, and bids fair to keep on slumbering, which is the best thing possible for her. I'll wager a good deal that we've warded off this attack, but, of course, she must have somebody with her every minute, until she wakens, and we see how she is."

"You surely landed here most opportunely," she said. "I want a chance to go down to my own apartment and set in motion that plan for Faith of which I told you." She sent me a significant glance, and I nodded toward Mary.

"I told her you were concocting a scheme that would keep Faith away from the luncheon," I said.

"For which, my heartfelt thanks," Mary said. "And, why can't I double in brass and watch by Grannie's bedside while you're away?"

"You can and may," Katharine said smiling. "There isn't a thing to do except to sit quietly near her, so if she wakens, she'll see you. And if you should need me—which you won't—the telephone is at hand, and your Auntie Madge next door."

Strictly on Guard

"I'll be strictly on guard," Mary promised.

"That's splendid," Katharine commended, "for I want your aunt free to do a job on your uncle."

"Sounds as if you were planning to put arsenic in his tea," Mary gibed.

"Nothing so drastic this time," Katharine answered with a smile. "It really wouldn't be cricket, with him crippled. Perhaps later, if he needs it."

Then she faced me, and gave me my assignment.

"Tell Dicky to keep absolutely mum about the luncheon before Faith," she said. "And if she mentions it, tell him to affect boredom, as if he had to go, but didn't like the prospect."

YOUR HEALTH

By HERMAN BUNDENSEN, M.D.

Migraine

WHEN people speak of a "family headache," they usually don't mean a physical disorder. Nevertheless, there is one out of the many types of headache which might be described in this way because it seems to run in families.

It is called migraine, and according to Dr. Vincent J. Derbes and his co-workers of New Orleans, if there is not a family history of headache, it is doubtful that the condition is migraine.

In certain children there is a condition called cycle vomiting in which the child has attacks of vomiting at almost regular intervals. It is thought that many of these children will develop migraine in later years. Then, too, persons who have periodic attacks of depression with the feeling of confusion, strangeness and absent-mindedness whose attacks last a relitively short time and in which there is no loss of conscious may also be suffering from migraine.

The typical attack of migraine comes on also at fairly regular intervals. The headache usually occur only on one side. Sickness to the stomach and vomiting are present in many cases. The formation of excessive saliva in the mouth, and sweating may also be noted.

Sometimes, the vomiting seems to bring the patient relief and when vomiting occurs the headache stops. Sometimes, the patient is over-sensitive to noise and light. Ringing in the ears, drowsiness and excessive formation of urine may also be present. The average attacks lasts from twelve to twenty-four hours.

Migraine occurs about twice as often in women as in men. It may even develop in children. The majority of cases start in the first ten to twenty years of life but rarely persist beyond the age of sixty and even if they do they become less severe from year to year. The disorder occurs for the the most part in intellectual people, possibly because they are subject to more mental fatigue and emotional excitement.

Insofar as the treatment of the condition is concerned, it is thought that many of these persons may be sensitive to the foods which they eat. By keeping a record of the foods eaten and the times when the attacks occur, it may be possible to find the foods which may be causing the trouble. Of course, these foods should then be eliminated from the diet.

Treatment with glandular extract such as estrogenes, substances useful for the production of a feeling of well-being in life difficulties, as well as extracts from the pituitary gland, have been found helpful in some few cases.

When an attack of migraine starts, of course, the patient wants immediate relief. The drug known as ergotamine tartrate taken by mouth or given by injection often stops the difficulty, but it should only be taken under the doctor's direction. The breathing in of oxygen also has been found useful.

The republic of Cuba adopted its first constitution in 1901.

Programs on the Air

When Tom Breneman and Hedda Hopper got into an argument as to whether professional milliners surpassed average American women in the creation of ingenious and distinctive hats, a contest resulted. From every state in the country and from Canada have come the creations of amateur milliners. Headpieces ranging from delicate floral bouquets to hats constructed of plastic, fur, feathers, wood and bottle tops are among the entries. An average of fifteen truckloads still arrives each day. Winners of the contest will be announced on April 8 on Hedda Hopper's Hollywood, and Tom Breneman's Breakfast in Hollywood.

Television as an aid to the network reasserted got a chance to do its stuff in connection with the United Nations council meeting in New York, and worked out fairly well.

Since the sessions started at Hunter college, NBC has relayed pictures of the activities to its downtown radio city headquarters for a special group of receivers. It went over a "closed circuit" due to the fact that the transmitter WNBT is off the air to change frequency.

Another receiver was added to the setup solely for the men who broadcast the news. Although several miles away from the scene, it enabled them to get a direct look-in on the proceedings and do what could be termed "eye-witness" descriptions.

The equipment was removed yesterday. NBC said it was needed for a test at Princeton, N. J.

GI Leave Pay Hits New Snag

Budget Chief Cites Expense and Bookkeeping Job But Fight Goes On.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 29 — Backers of the idea of letting GI's as well as officers collect terminal leave pay put spurs to their drive today in the face of a budget bureau rebuff

The latter came in a report complaining of the multi-billion-dollar cost and huge bookkeeping obstacles

Supporters of the legislation to give enlisted personnel the same furlough pay consideration now accorded to officers said they were convinced the bureau's report meant the house military committee would not approve the proposal.

So they centered their attention on a discharge petition to force house action regardless of what the committee does.

Rep Dwight L. Rogers (D-Fla) told reporters the petition was being signed at a rate that indicated the necessary 218 signatures would be affixed "within 20 days."

Once that number is secured, the legislation comes up automatically for a house vote

Made public today, the report estimated the cost of the legislation at "several billions" of dollars and pointed out that no provision for such an expenditure was made in the President's budget for the current year

While it would be "glad" to recommend legislation affecting only men discharged after the proposed law is enacted, the bureau said, it could not agree with a subcommittee's recommendation that the pay benefits apply to every enlisted man who has served since the draft law was enacted

The Rogers bill would entitle enlisted men, at the time of discharge, to extra pay at the rate of 30 days a year for furlough time to which they were entitled but which, because of the war, they did not receive. It puts the same 120-day ceiling on such accumulated leave as applies to officers

Order New Estimates on Ditch Projects

Following a hearing on Holverstott-Riffle ditch in Claridon township Thursday, county commissioners ordered the county engineer to make new estimates on the project.

Present estimates were made about a year ago and are too low considering the present cost of labor and materials, the commissioners said. A new hearing will be scheduled at a later date.

Original petition for deepening, cleaning and repairing the ditch was filed by Ralph C. Hurr of Claridon township in July, 1943

OPA CHIEF PLEDGES CHANGES IF NEEDED

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON March 29 — Price Administrator Paul Porter told congress today price ceilings would be adjusted wherever needed to spur production and be wiped out entirely as soon as it was safe to do so without the disaster of inflation

This was the administration's economic high command answer to charges by some elements in business and industry that OPA was encouraging black markets, stifling production and contributing to inflation

Porter told the house banking committee there was danger of a severe cumulative inflation in the next 12 months or so, with prices advancing 30, 40 or 50 per cent

But, he added confidently he was convinced we can avoid serious inflation if we have the guts and teamwork to do it

He urged approval of legislation to extend the life of OPA for a year beyond June 30

TAFT RAPS VIEWS OF ROOSEVELT SON

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 29 — Senator Taft (R-Ohio) today denounced statements attributed to Franklin D Roosevelt Jr that congressmen had yielded to powerful lobbies by stabbing at the heart of the veterans emergency housing program

Taft told Sen Zagoria of the American Veterans Committee who read a paper he said had been prepared by Roosevelt that he was missing a comparatively minor attack in an issue on which there was a perfectly legitimate difference of opinion

The Ohio senator told other members of the senate banking committee which is considering housing legislation that he did not think witnesses should reflect on the motives of the house of representatives or on those of members of the senate who might agree with them

The testimony which Zagoria attributed to Roosevelt chairman of the veterans organization's housing committee criticized the house chairman for cutting out of the Patman bill $600,000,000 in subsidies for building materials and authority to establish ceiling prices on existing dwellings

A black page was written in the history of our nation when the house of representatives voted against the veterans of this country by refusing to support a minimum veterans housing program Zagoria read

In stabbing at the heart of the veterans emergency housing program the house of representatives yielded to the most powerful special-interest lobbies seen in Washington for 20 years The voices and the very real needs of the men who gave up their homes to fight for this country have been ignored

The senate must not repeat this disgraceful performance

The Redin Example

WHEN THE FBI steps into a spy case involving a friendly foreign government, the chips are down. The arrest of Lt. Nicolai Gregorovich Redin, a member of the Russian purchasing commission in this country, is another application of the government's new policy of realism in Soviet relations. Lt. Redin, for better or worse, is going to be used to prove something. He is charged with being a spy for a foreign power.

The United States has opened its doors to many Russian nationals during the war. It has given these visitors the benefit of its traditional hospitality. They have traveled where they wanted to go, talked to anyone they wanted to talk to and been granted the courtesy due the representatives of an esteemed ally. But Americans have not had the same privileges in Russia, which guarded their movements closely.

This has been a gnawing annoyance. It became worse when Canada disclosed that Russians enjoying its hospitality had practiced espionage. The United States went on the alert. Lt. Redin happens to be the first consequence of that alertness. What his government may find in his case to excuse him is uncertain. What he may offer in his own defense is uncertain. But meanwhile, the chief internal security agency of the United States has made it officially known that this country, seeking confidence and having shown perhaps more confidence than justified, does not condone betrayals of its hospitality. The repercussions will not stop with Lt. Redin.

2,000,000 Men Weak

IF THE Iran test of UNO's power to prevent aggression had been allowed by Russia to drift into a showdown, no armed force could have been brought to bear.

In the first place, no armed force existed. Its creation is one of the matters to be settled in the New York meeting of the security council. A force of 2,000,000 men is contemplated.

In the second place, if UNO had been provided with an enforcement arm, its use in Iran probably would have been impossible because of Russia's veto power. It is not expected that UNO ever will act against the wishes of any major power.

The 2,000,000 men who may be earmarked to enforce its decisions would be used only against minor powers. The major powers, according to the UNO charter, are subject to no discipline but their own. If at any time one of them should decide to commit aggression against the wishes of one or more of the other major powers, the result would be war. The Iran dispute has made that clear. There can be no cooperative security without mutual good faith on the part of the major powers. If they cannot discipline themselves, it will not matter whether they have 2,000,000 or 200,000,000 troops available to discipline others.

Coal Miners at Home

THE IMPORTANCE of a coal industry tie-up as an added impediment on full production cannot be overestimated. John L. Lewis and his United Mine Workers are taking a heavy responsibility, as are the bituminous operators.

But a stoppage of work in the bituminous mines in springtime is not an unforeseen emergency. It is, rather, a traditional occurrence. The operators and Mr. Lewis cannot agree on a new contract. The miners under his jurisdiction will not work without a contract. They prefer to "spend the time at home with their families," as Mr. Lewis himself puts it. Many of them go fishing. They are not on strike. They are not locked out. They are merely men who are temporarily away from their jobs. It has been happening this way for a long time. Coal miners at home in the spring is almost as much a part of the social pattern as "at homes" during the holidays—a sign of spring as infallible as the blooming of the forsythia.

The Glory That Is Greece

THE spirit of Greek independence after 125 years is still unquenchable. On the anniversary of the fight to throw off Turkish rule, Greece and the friends of Greece need all their traditional courage. The battle goes on. Greeks must continue to seek what they never have found in entirety—security for their culture and Greek ideals.

It has been their fate to stand between powerful forces, but it has been their deliberate decision to stand for their own principles. In World War II they were in the cross-fire between the European Axis and its opposition for control of the Aegean peninsula. In the aftermath of World War II they have been caught again between factions outside Greece and, more lamentably, between factions inside their own population.

In a better-ordered world, the Greeks could be spared further struggle. But in the world we have, the struggle is unavoidable—the expression of the indomitable will to independence that is the highest expression of the human spirit. After 125 years, the Greeks have not capitulated. After another 125 years, they will not have capitulated. The glory that is Greece will not be extinguished.

Season for Political Hokum Now at Hand.

WASHINGTON, March 29—The hokum biennial is at hand.

The usual band of whooper-uppers are sounding their A's for the usual pre-election campaign to save the common man from dire peril by the special devices they have contrived for that purpose. After Mr. Wallace succeeded in getting Messrs. Truman and Hannegan to undertake a squawkable for "the program," Senator Pepper called a meeting to think about taking up the poll tax again. The "poll tax," as the phrase is used in congress, is an issue raised every two years just before election, by northern Democrats to allure the Negro votes in the large cities and cause the southern Democrats to prevent its enactment—which does not hurt them at home.

This biennial struggle-to-the-death over the payment of 50 cents or a dollar for the expenses of conducting an election generates great fury which ignores persistently the fact that the poll tax is only one of the minor laws restraining voting in an inflationary age when dollar bills are practically being given away as wrappers on chewing gum.

Poll Tax Hokum

The poll tax hokum biennial works somewhat like the recent FEPC struggle. The FEPC program proposed to make permanent a government agency which is operating now, has been furnished funds by congress, and will continue to operate. That was the only issue—to pledge the permanence of something already being done. I must say that the real, but intangible, issue was the struggle of the CIO-New Deal group for power and prestige by forcing their will upon congress, and this was the reason for the strenuous southern resistance, but the overlooked point of the matter I am trying to bring forth now is the pure hokum of the claim that the common man was in peril because of lack of permanency of an agency already operating.

So also with "the program." It is suffering the same defects of lack of exciting substance upon which to build a great fight. The CIO's full employment bill has now become law—in an urn. Its pledge of permanency for government spending was emasculated, and its words reduced to ashes, before it was finally enacted. It meant nothing in the first place to an era in which the government is spending many times more than Roosevelt at his palmiest.

Still pending is the minimum wage bill to establish 65 cents an hour now and 75 cents in four years. A compromise will no doubt be made for something like 60 cents now and 65 cents in two years. But contractors are being forced to pay $1 an hour to get common labor in even cheap-price areas (if any remain). With inflation already under way and further price increases in prospect (see Baruch testimony), the minimum wage figures occupy a realm of theory which the real live perils of the common man, such as inflation and prices, have reduced to infinitesimal size.

Also Pending

Also pending and stymied is unemployment compensation proposing a few more dollars for a few more weeks—at a time when production is the thing upon which employment will raise or fall.

These are the basic CIO program points with which the Wallace-CIO-Pepper politicians are trying to build up the life or death level. In addition, fact finding (in practice but opposed by CIO), price control continuance and housing (greatly curtailed from the Truman and CIO free-giving subsidy plane), fill out what might be called "the vital program."

As far as my agents on the capitol ground can see, the whooper-upper campaign is not likely to make as much difference this year, as formerly. Congress seems determined not to be ridden into enacting CIO programs. By its action, it is writing its own program upon which to run for re-election this fall.

WE STRIPPED FOR WAR, WHY NOT FOR PEACE?

The president of the American Sunbathing association said in a recent Chicago interview that "the world would be a better place in which to live if everybody took their clothes off."

He means ultimately, of course. There would necessarily be an unhappy transition period while all the tailors, dressmakers and zipper manufacturers starved to death.

His is a new variation of an old theme—the idea, I mean, that all men are brothers under their BVD's.

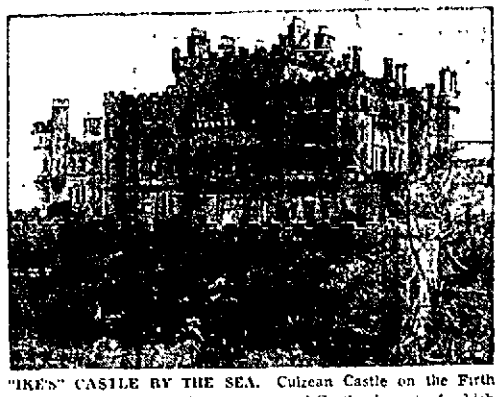
This total nudity for total peace business may catch on: What better way of symbolizing that we have no secrets, one from the other?

One can almost visualize the various delegations to the UNO, making formal entry in their spats, top-hats and unprecedented expanse of bare midriff.

Undeniably, universal nudism would place a tremendous handicap on the world's militarists. Where, for instance, would a jerk like Goering pin his medals?

Gen. Eisenhower's Castle

Gift in Scotland Gives Him Hunting Base.



"IKE'S" CASTLE BY THE SEA. Culzean Castle on the Firth of Clyde, near Ayr, on the west coast of Scotland, part of which has been given to Gen. Eisenhower. The top floor of the central block will be furnished in a "modern, comfortable style."

By The Associated Press

EDINBURGH—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower has all the makings of a "Scottish Nobleman" to add to the many laurels conferred upon him, since he accepted the gift of part of Culzean Castle and its noble facilities.

The general's suite on the top floor of the castle commands a magnificent view of the Firth of Clyde, halfway between Edinburgh and Glasgow, and along with it goes the use of a family pew in an old "kirk."

The presentation was made by the family of the Lords Ailsa, which has an American connection through the marriage, in 1769, of the great-great grandfather of the present lord to the daughter of John Watts of New York. Members of the family will continue to use one wing of the castle, and other portions will be opened to the public.

Includes Hunting Rights

The presentation was arranged through the National Trust, a non-taxable, non-profit organization formed during the war to help preserve for Britain her ancient estates whose traditional owners no longer are able to bear the cost of upkeep. Through this arrangement, many families have donated their holdings for school, park, rest home and other uses while retaining certain living rights for themselves.

The presentation to General Eisenhower also carries with it the rights to some 2,000 acres of shooting ground, made-to-order 18th century furnishings, and a well-equipped armory. The castle is not far from the international airport at Prestwick.

As a concession to more modern desires of the "nobleman," the donors of the castle also said they would furnish his flat in a "modern, comfortable style" if the general preferred.

The gift was made to the general "on behalf of the Scottish nation in recognition of his great leadership in the war."

Sir Ian Colquehuon, chairman of the National Trust, acclaimed the gesture by the Ailsa family as "an imaginative act which will strengthen the bonds of sympathy with the United States;" and said no effort would be spared to get the house ready for Eisenhower and his friends as soon as possible. The trust also is to provide a number of houses on the estate for ex-servicemen to be selected by the general.

The Culzean Castle dates back to the early history of Scotland and was said to "have an association with Scotland's heroic king." The present buildings and landscaping, however, are mainly the work of the famous architect, Robert Adam, who designed the old round tower and the gardens 160 years ago.

Describing his family's reaction to presenting the gift to the American general, the Marquis of Ailsa said:

"Within 24 hours of the time I sent out confidential and secret letters mentioning the magic name of Eisenhower, telephone wires became hot with the enthusiastic and cordial approval of my brothers and other members of the family."

Eisenhower Plans To Visit Castle Soon

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower hopes before too long to visit historic Culzean Castle in Scotland, part of which has been given to him "on behalf of the Scottish nation in recognition of his great leadership in the war."

This was announced by the chief of staff's aides in the war department, who said the general has an idea that he may be able to get away sometime during the summer.

Pressure of official duties compelled him to decline a specific invitation to go to Edinburgh May 20.

The settlement was based on an agreement by the American government to float a huge bond issue in this country to finance Germany in paying the claims of American nationals.

Mugwumps Ride Again

Wallace Calls Attention to Old Party Problem.

By JACK STINNETT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The problem of how to discipline political party bolters—mugwumps—is almost as old as political parties themselves.

When Democratic Secretary of Commerce Henry A. Wallace, at the Washington Jackson day dinner, urged "Democrats who have been harmful to our cause" to return to the fold and "honor our side of the fence with their mugs as well as their wumps," he was borrowing a pun originated 10 years ago by a Republican.

It was just short of 10 years ago by a month that Rep. Albert J. Engel, independent Michigan Republican, brought down the house of representatives, by Henry A. Wallace referring to an opponent as "one of those boys who always has his mug on one side of the political fence and his wump on the other."

Congressman Engel's use of the word went a little beyond the classical definition. As he explains today, he was applying it particularly to those politicians who, regardless of their convictions, change to whatever side of the political party fence suits their financial or patronage interests.

Secretary Wallace was clearly using it in reference to those Democrats who consistently block the administration's legislative program by teaming up with the not-much-in-minority Republicans. He didn't say so but his reference applies mostly to the conservative Southern Democrats, many of whom were conspicuous by their absence from the overflowing $100-a-plate fund-raising Jackson day banquet.

Originated with G.O.P.

Yet it was to Republican party bolters that the word "mugwumps" was first applied, so far as any written record goes. The word has had a strange mutation. It comes from the Algonquin Indian language and never was used there to signify anything but a chieftain.

However, in 1884, the New York Sun came out with a blistering editorial branding those Republicans who refused to back James G. Blaine for the presidency as "political mugwumps."

A few days later, the New York Post was reporting that the Republican Independents were being referred to all over the country as "Pharisees, hypocrites, dudes and mugwumps."

A few moments after Secretary Wallace made his pun, he hastened to add that he himself had been a mugwump (he was by family tradition and early leanings a Republican) until he had knocked at the door of liberal opportunities offered by the Democratic party.

Don't made any mistake about the importance of Wallace's suggestion that the "mugwumps" be read out of the party—"purged."

Usually Futile

Don't make any mistake about it either that any such "purge" will be attempted by the party organization. It has been tried over and over and in nine cases out of 10 has been more harmful than helpful to the party cause.

What Secretary Wallace did (I suspect, inadvertently, since his "purge" speech was purely impromptu before a small luncheon of the Women's Democratic club here, and there was only one newspaper reporter in the house) was to give dramatic point to the critical state of the administration's legislative program.

He suggested that both parties apply party discipline on major issues—the British loan, full employment, atomic energy and such. It isn't a new idea at all. The LaFollette-Monroney congressional reorganization committee has suggested that the party caucus very infrequently used these last 20 years or so, be reestablished to give some semblance of order to partisan views.

Daily Bible Thought

Why should we imagine that we can lay out our course of life casually without serious study and reflection? Wisdom must be diligently searched for. God's ways fall into definite laws. Prov. 2:4, 5: "If thou seek her as silver, and search for her as hid treasures; then shalt thou understand the fear of the Lord."

CROSSTOWN By Roland Coe

"You're lucky I could dig you up SOMETHING to wear, nice thing about it is, you don't need any shirts!"

The Once Over

By H. I. PHILLIPS

Spring Signs

GENTLE spring is here I know—
The thrush sings in the tree,
The turtle dove is singing low,
(Well soon bomb Bikini)
The frogs are croaking on the pond,
The kids play mumble-peg,
Lambs gambol in the fields beyond
(Will peace now lay an egg?)

II

The vernal season, yes, is here,
And I have ample proof
Much gayer is the chanticleer,
The squirrels romp my roof;
I saw an oriole today,
The buds burst near my door—
And everywhere the people say,
"Looks like another war!"

III

Forsythia blooms in the dell,
Rose-blossom time is near,
(The atom bomb is doing well
For March, it would appear);
The hedgehog poses in the sun,
The meadow is aglow
(And Fuzzy Goering's having fun
And staging quite a show).

IV

The bluebird soon will be along,
The dew is on the grass,
The woodland now is full of song
And Congress full of gas;
The turkey-gurgles grind it out
(The little states get knocked about
As ultimatums fly!).

V

The waterfall is foaming white,
The trout are seen to break,
I heard a nightingale last night
(Joe Stalin's on the make);
Along the wall the chipmunks run,
We soon will have bock beer,
(Our Army has a rocket gun
To pierce the stratosphere).

VI

Hark to the baby chicks! Peep! Peep!
All nature's on its toes
Across the world the warnings leap
"I'll sock ya in the nose!"...
In lilac bush a sparrow perks,
The woodthrush woos its mate—
And up at Hunter UNO works
So war won't beat the gate!

The papers are devoting much space to the discovery that street cars can be converted into pretty comfortable dwellings. Discovery, eye! Years ago we were a surface-car tenant, a two-surface-car dweller to be exact. They were hauled down to the beach of a Connecticut shore resort and a small livingroom built between them, with a porch added front and rear. Each car was used as a bedroom. We occupied a set-up with a bunch of boys back home. There was only one drawback. Jim Finnegan used to get in after midnight and enjoy ringing up fares.

An elaborate bar is one of the features of the UNO set-up at Hunter. We understand it will specialize in slings and punches.

Then there is the Iran cocktail: One drunk and a ten-day postponement.

BRONX—1946

Oh, Bronx, you're on the map today!
No longer, kid, are you
A spot where kids and golfers play
And folks ask "Where's the zoo?"

Now you're a city of the world—
You are a planet's hub:
A new name for you is unfurl'd—
Geneva-on-the-sub!

Then there will be, also, the UNO rickey. Two drinks and you're vetoed.

President Truman has postponed the atom-bomb test at Bikini for six weeks. Under the old schedule it conflicted with the opening of the baseball season.

We trust that if there is a free lunch at the UNO bar there will be absolutely no baloney.

Better Vision

By Truman Twill

Propped up beside us to stimulate the following comments is a picture of a lush dolly rigged up in what is described as a pair of glasses for gala occasions, with rhinestone-studded frames. This is part of a campaign to make cheaters as fashionable as the other accessories worn by lush dollies on gala occasions, it says.

The idea is that glasses should not be a drawback but an asset. The old saying: men seldom make passes at girls who wear glasses—is going to be repealed. From now on, the glasses will be all the better to see you with, you mischievous boy. Hand me my specs and let's get organized. That's the idea. Ho hum.

The glasses designers—we've been watching their antics a long time—always get the problem backward. They get the glasses in front of the wrong eyes. They run up something fancy, then call in a Powers model to try it out. This, they announce, is what the new glasses look like. What they mean is, this is what a Powers model looks like in the new glasses.

What concerns the ordinary run of women—and men—is what they look like. No matter how many rhinestones, or how much hoity-toity may be added to cheaters for the masses, the designers can't make photographers' models out of human beings with faces only a mother could love.

But hope springs eternal. The clock-stoppers keep shopping around for goggles supposed to improve their appearance. And what do we get? We get millions of people who don't look one bit better than they looked before. Nothing can improve their appearance, except an operation followed by a couple thousand dollars' worth of plastic surgery.

We have strong feelings on this subject because a pressure bloc is trying to panic the defendant into buying a new pair of frames. The old ones, which were good enough before World War II and World War I, suddenly are said to be out of style. Something in tinted glass with a squint-eye effect is being ballyhooed.

But it still would be the same old pucker behind the lenses. There never have been any illusions in this myopic corner that glasses do anything for human beings except make them see. The best pair we ever had were made of German silver with little round lenses. No one ever exclaimed, "Oh what darling glasses! They just do wonders for your face, just wonderful." No one ever will exclaim that. People will go right on saying what they've always said about those who had to wear glasses to see what they were looking for, which frequently is people who don't wear glasses. "Uh, can you see anything without them?"

DEFENSE COUNCIL PLAN STIRS CAPITAL

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 29 — President Truman's idea for a council of star-studded elder statesmen on national defense caught Capitol Hill by surprise today.

Key members of senate and house military and naval committees said today they had no previous word of the President's intention.

Mr. Truman announced at his news conference yesterday that, acting under a recently approved bill providing permanent five-star rank for four generals and four admirals and four-star rank for the Marine and Coast Guard commanders, he had sent their names to the senate for confirmation.

The Chief Executive told newsmen the 10 World War II leaders would constitute an organization of elder statesmen, which would serve directly under him. Its members will be:

Generals of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower, Douglas MacArthur, George C. Marshall and Henry H. Arnold; Fleet Admirals William D. Leahy, Chester W. Nimitz, William F. Halsey and Ernest J. King; Gen. Alexander A. Vandegrift, Marine commander, and Adm. Russell R. Waesche, chief of the Coast Guard.

Chairman Elbert D. Thomas (D-Utah) of the senate military committee expressed surprise when reporters told him of the elder statesmen plan. He said he had not been consulted, and he expressed the hope that any policy organization would include members of congress.

ALLIES SLASH GERMAN POWER

Plan Eliminates Reich's War Potential, But Develops Self-Support.

By The Associated Press

BERLIN, March 29 — A plan to eliminate Germany's industrial war potential while retaining enough of the beaten nation's economy to make it reasonably self-sustaining by 1949 has been adopted by the Allied control council.

The program slashes German economy in half and places future emphasis in production on agriculture and on coal and materials for the rebuilding of war-torn cities.

Every industry which can be diverted to the manufacture of war materials is to be eliminated and other industries considered on the fringe of the war potential are to be cut back. Only enough export trade is provided for to pay for the food Germans must import to maintain their reduced living scale.

Allied officers said the target was to establish by 1949 a standard of living for Germany approximately that of 1932. Germans would not be permitted a higher standard of living than the European average.

Four General Classes

The council's outline established four general industrial categories.

1. Industries to be prohibited. These included synthetic gasoline and oil, synthetic rubber, synthetic ammonia, ball and taper roller bearings, heavy machine tools of war-making types, heavy tractors, aluminum, magnesium, beryllium, vanadium, radio active materials (including uranium), hydrogen peroxide.

2. Those to be restricted to certain levels so any excess can be used to pay off Germany's war debts. Cutbacks included steel, limited to 5,800,000 ingot tons a year, about 38 per cent of the pre-war output; and machine tools, with only 11.4 per cent of pre-war production allowed.

3. Industries producing peacetime goods which may go ahead full blast. Coal is to be mined to the utmost, providing a balance for export in order that Germany may have cash to meet reparations. Official estimates said coal output by 1949 would be 75 per cent of the 1936 peak.

4. Industries which have levels fixed for 1949 only, without providing for reparations should those levels be exceeded.

Greek Longing for America Impresses Boyle

By HAL BOYLE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

ATHENS, March 29—There is a great yearning toward America in Greece.

This Balkan outpost and first home of democracy is peculiarly sympathetic to American ideals because so many of its people have emigrated to the United States and generally found their security and peace beyond what they knew before. The money they sent back to relatives here was one of the chief factors in Greece's pre-war financial stability.

Hal Boyle

Greece has been one of the chief beneficiaries of UNRRA and here people feel a deep sense of gratitude. The Greeks are largely simple peasant people with great-hearted virtues and very human weaknesses. They are like mountain people at home, capable of great feuds and great loyalties.

They live close to the soil—rocky, grudging soil—and they remember favors. They lead rugged lives and are independent and spiritually self-reliant people.

Many Greeks still look hopefully forward to America as the land of opportunity, and hundreds have returned from the United States to fight for Greece during the war. I want to go back across the Atlantic again.

I know of nothing better that will teach belief in the American message than to move among plain people overseas to whom America is still a shining story, the Cinderella land of world politics. Their faith makes one who was born in the United States considerably ashamed of taking for granted advantages that last fortunate hands dream of.

But posters are the busiest people in Greece. They go galloping about at all hours, hanging up election posters. No sooner does one side put up a poster than another comes by to paste up the opposition answer before the paste is dry.

Greece is the true home of kibitzers. If you bend over to tie your shoes a crowd will gather. There is a saying in Athens that if a stranger asks the time four people will be killed in the ensuing debate. Another saying is that every time two Greeks meet two new political parties are born.

system, aluminum double-hung windows, and many other modern improvements.

Part of General Program

Expansion and remodeling of the Marion S. S. Kresge store is in line with Kresge activity throughout the country, according to a company announcement, which states that special attention is being given stores of this group—the Kresge "combination" stores. This group is designated as a part of the latest evolution of Kresge company policy, combining the lines of merchandise carried in "Dime" stores with those carried in the higher priced "Dollar" stores — making all Kresge merchandise lines available to customers in one store.

New Kresge stores, completely contemporary in style and of imposing size, now are being built in Sioux City, Ia.; Lexington, Ky.; and Pontiac, Mich. Also during 1946, others are planned for Hazelton, Pa.; Meriden, Conn.; Detroit, Mich.; Erie, Pa.; Chicago, Ill. and Arlington, Va.

Besides planning these new units, numerous minor and several major refixturing projects were completed in Kresge stores during 1945 and others are scheduled for 1946, the management stated but points out that activity would be much greater if labor and materials to carry out the work were available.

Remodeling of the Marion store is under the direction of Engineer James A. Clarry. G. C. Hill is district merchandise superintendent and W. P. Brown, store manager.

A member of the Kresge organization since 1926, Brown has managed stores for the past 17 years. He came to Marion as manager in 1942.

has a postwar planning committee, or some similar group concerned with their community's economic future. The data, though it may not eliminate the need for further estimates, do offer basic employment facts.

"To the employers * * * the findings should be of especial significance. Those with personnel engaged in sales analysis, or marketing research, or problems of plant location are particularly anxious to know employment trends by local areas, and to gear their plans accordingly.

"To the organizations advising veterans on areas of greatest labor demand, to unions studying and acting upon employment trends, to trade and other associations advising their members, to all of these and others participating in their community's economic and civic activities the available facts on employment and employment prospects will be meaningful."

UNRRA

former mayor of New York was confronted with an assignment complicated by the fact that the relief work was dependent upon voluntary procurement of supplies rather than mandatory rationing.

Despite Lehman's request the UNRRA council refused to go all out for war time controls over food. UNRRA'S position was taken in concurrence with the contention by President Truman, Herbert Hoover and Agriculture Secretary Clinton Anderson that rationing now was unnecessary to meet a short period emergency.

Much Not Settled

The UNRRA struggled two weeks to find ways and means of preventing mass starvation. Many problems were left unsettled.

Beyond focusing world attention on the shortages, UNRRA took few hardboiled steps for supplementing them from the three biggest potential food bins—the United States, Latin America and Russia.

Despite the pleas of little countries dependent upon relief, UNRRA's council gingerly sidestepped a move to call for hard-and-fast return to rationing in all countries. Instead the delegates suggested such a step "where necessary."

One Dead in Two-Hour Food Riot in Reich

By The Associated Press

STUTTGART, Germany, March 29—One displaced Jew was killed, five were wounded, and an American soldier and several German policemen were injured today in violent rioting which followed a black market raid on a displaced persons camp in Stuttgart's outskirts.

Two hours of rioting erupted when German police, accompanied by a "token force" of U. S. military police, moved into the camp to search for counterfeit ration stamps. First reports indicated the fighting was complicated when nearby American soldiers, who did not know the raid had official sanction, rushed to the aid of the displaced persons.

The riot ended only when American armored cars rolled into the camp.

Three Traffic Mishaps Reported to Police

Three automobile accidents were reported to police late Thursday and early Friday morning.

Margaret Burns of 756 Gill avenue struck a trailer which was backing out of a driveway near her home Thursday at 5 p. m. The trailer, parked in front of 758 Gill avenue, belonged to Leo Savage of that address.

A car driven by Mrs. Juanita Tron of near Marion collided with a city bus while attempting to pass near 456 West Center street Thursday at 4:15 p. m.

A car driven by Edwin Pearson, 26, of 138 East Farming street was struck by a truck owned by the Arthur Walter Seed Co. of Kenton on North Main street near the railroad tracks Friday at 7:30 a. m. According to police reports, the truck pulled away from the curb and struck Pearson's car, damaging the right rear fender and door.

Democrats Try New Plan for Harmony

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 29—Speaker Rayburn had Democrats in and out of congress a little chummier today—he and other party leaders hoped.

The Texan talked turkey to Democrats of all shades of opinion at an informal "harmony" supper at the Mayflower hotel last night. He pleaded for unity and said Democrats of all sections should work to keep control of congress in the November elections. He also had some words of praise for President Truman.

The supper was an experiment—the Democratic national committee picked up the check—to try to get party members in congress better acquainted with those in executive positions and to further Mr. Truman's plea for more unity and party responsibility.

WELL-KNOWN GALION FLORIST STRICKEN

C. Herman Helfrich Rites To Be Held Sunday.

Special to The Star

GALION, March 29 — Funeral services for C. Herman Helfrich, Galion florist, who died at 11 a. m. Thursday, will be held Sunday at 2:30 p. m. at the Trinity Lutheran church. Rev. Henry Lenz will officiate, and burial will be made in Fairview cemetery.

Mr. Helfrich had been seriously ill at his home at 839 North Columbus street, since last Friday. He had been in ill health for several months.

Mr. Helfrich was born Aug. 10, 1866 in Carrollton, the youngest son of Henry and Catherine (Sauers) Helfrich. He came to Galion with his parents when he was two years of age. He attended Galion schools, and later became foreman of the A. Howard Buggy Co. In 1907 he resigned his position and started a small greenhouse, raising only vegetables. In 1928, the first of the main buildings was started, expanding the business to the present C. H. Helfrich, Florist, establishment. Mr. Helfrich was an accomplished violinist in his youth, leading an orchestra, and on one occasion was called upon to play the accompaniment for the late world known Welsh tenor, Evan Williams, who appeared here in concert.

The marriage of Mr. Helfrich and Miss Katherine Biebighauser took place Oct. 14, 1896.

Surviving are his widow; two daughters, Mrs. Albert Neumann and Mrs. Reuben Klopfenstein of Galion; and four sons, Paul Helfrich of near Bucyrus; Lawrence, Robert and Richard, all of Galion; three grandchildren, Mrs. Walter Corney of Marion, Phyllis Jean Helfrich and Jerry Reman Helfrich of Galion.

It is believed that grief over the loss of one son, Sgt. Ernest Helfrich, killed in action in France, 18 months ago, seriously affected his health.

Mackenzie Views Iranian Showdown As Sign of Hope

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press Writer

GANDER NEWFOUNDLAND, March 29—Well, here we are grounded again in the battle we've been waging since last Monday night to reach New York by air from Paris.

Gremlins—some folk claim it is—are interfering with radio communications, forming ice on wings, messing up visibility and playing other pranks which are far from humorous. More prosaic people attribute the radio interference to the northern lights and the ice to freakish weather which is staging a driving snowstorm outside the air headquarters in which this is being written.

Anyway we Dewitt&Mackenzie are stuck here in the far north at one of the world's great airbases. Several other planes are held up here and the lounge is filled with a crowd of travelers from many countries.

The Usual Scene

There are the inevitable bridge and gin rummy games going forward and the two Englishmen don't move from their interminable game of chess. But for the most part the assemblage is broken up into small groups, conversing about international problems.

One party drew me into a discussion of the hot clash in the United Nations security council over the Russian-Iranian imbroglio and we arrived at the conclusion that this was a most hopeful development.

That perhaps seems like a strange thought since the business of a peace league is to maintain peace, and yet it strikes me as a logical viewpoint.

This showdown means that the council is getting down to real business. It means that the UNO intends to do what its predecessor, the League of Nations, failed to do. That is, to nip in the bud the threats to peace.

You have a good illustration in the way the old league temporized with Japan's invasion of Manchuria. The league sent the Lytton commission out to the Far East to study the Jap outrage. The commission gave the invasion its right name and called for action against the aggressors. But the league temporized and let the thing go by default. From that stemmed Mussolini's attack on Ethiopia and finally Hitler's attempt to conquer the world.

Must Be Tough

Either the United Nations deals with threats to peace quickly and finally without fear of personalities involved or it will follow the League of Nations as a failure.

Such a failure would mean another world conflict in due course.

That's why your little international committee up here in Gander takes hope from the fact that the security council isn't running away from its obligation, even though it be an uncomfortable one.

STOCK SALES SHOW SELECTIVE ADVANCE

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, March 29—The stock market today enjoyed a selective rally after a hesitant start.

Dealings dwindled in the wake of a fairly fast opening but expanded later and gains of fractions to 2 points or so were in the majority near the fourth hour.

Hopes for further price ceiling relaxation and the use of idle funds for employment, together with the exceptional "thinness" of the list, received the principal credit for the right-about. Dividends, earnings and splitup prospects provided a certain amount of bidding inspiration.

In front rank of the day were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet, General Motors, Chrysler, Willys-Overland, Santa Fe, Paramount Pictures, Hiram Walker, R-K-O, Pure Oil, Texas Co., Houston Oil, U. S. Rubber, International Harvester and Montgomery Ward.
